Amvis Group Provides Brokerage and Financial Advisory Services Leading to Successful M&A Deals

Amvis Holdings Corporation (Head Office: Chuo-ku, Tokyo; Representative Director: Keiichi Shibahara), through its subsidiary, Ashitano Iryo, Inc., has recently begun providing M&A brokerage and financial advisory services (“FA services”). The subsidiary first performed an M&A transaction for a medical corporation, followed by the provision of FA services to another medical corporation, which also resulted in an M&A transactions.

To date, the Group has set “solving medical issues in medically underpopulated areas with the power of business” as its business mission, and has worked to solve structural issues that are difficult to solve in medically underpopulated areas, mainly through the establishment and operation of medical centers. We have achieved certain level of success in this regard, but in order to address various medical issues flexibly, we believe that it is important to increase the number of solution methods.

As one of our solutions to support the management of medical institutions facing medical issues, we have launched a new M&A intermediary and FA business, and we will continue to help medical institutions improve their financial bases and profitability. In addition to M&A intermediary services, we also provide comprehensive FA services, including reorganizing the business structure of medical institutions.

The Group will continue to provide management support to a wide range of medical corporations, including general hospitals and back-up hospitals, and expand the number of clients for management support as we move toward full-fledged launch of our medical support business.
